

GSWW 425 Hilly Mouth

As the South West Coast Path leaves the tarmac road above Lee in North Devon it rises up a muddy slope which was gradually getting wider due to erosion. The project has defined the route of the path and resurfaced it with shillet making the surface easier and drier to walk on. Over a short rocky section the rock has been levelled to create a more even surface.

Before Photos:

After photos:

