

GSWW 393 Porthcurno Circular

The project's aims were to improve the surface to the bridleway that joins the South West Coast Path at Porthcurno in West Cornwall, to improve the access on the coast path by installing one set of granite steps.

This project improved safe access for pedestrians on this popular circular walk at the head of Porthcurno beach. It improved the surface for horse riders on the bridleway whilst having installed granite water breaks to ensure there was no further water erosion. Further to this project an application for National Trust funding has been submitted to improve the pedestrian access from the car park to the beach.

The path before work was started

During work

Completed work

